Volvo Cars to implement blockchain traceability of cobalt used in electric car batteries

Ahmedabad: Volvo Cars will become the first carmaker to implement the global traceability of cobalt used in its batteries by applying blockchain technology. The announcement follows the reveal last month of the company's first fully electric car, the XC40 Recharge.

Traceability of raw materials used in the production of lithium-ion batteries, such as cobalt, is one of the main sustainability challenges faced by carmakers. Volvo Cars is committed to full traceability, ensuring that customers can drive electrified Volvos knowing the material for the batteries has been sourced responsibly.

Blockchain technology, which establishes a transparent and reliable shared data network, significantly boosts transparency of the raw material supply chain as the information about the material's origin cannot be changed undetected. (20-4)
